BOSTON ISLAMIC SEMINARY

ANNUAL REPORT

INAUGURAL YEAR
2016-2017

The Year in REVIEW

Asalamu Alaikum Wa Rahmatullahi Wa Barakatu,

On behalf of the Boston Islamic Seminary, I would like to thank you for a tremendous inaugural year for our growing institution! We are grateful for your support as we start this long journey towards building a world-class institution of higher education. May Allah (SWT) reward you greatly in this life and in the Hereafter for being part of this exciting project.

We launched the Seminary initiative with a broad vision of training Muslim leaders for the American context. Like you, we are familiar with the challenges of finding leaders for our institutions who understand the depth of the Islamic tradition and can speak to the cultural, social, and political issues unique to our community. Institutions like the Boston Islamic Seminary that blend training in sacred text and cultural context are essential for ensuring the long-term success of our masajid and other organizations, and ultimately for the success of Islam in America. Muslim leaders can make an impact throughout society, and we look forward to launching programs to increase the understanding of Islam among people of all educational and even differing faith backgrounds.

Our plan for the Seminary includes two academic programs: Continuing Education and the full-time Graduate Program. We launched our Continuing Education program in the fall of 2016, and used this first year of operations as a time to experiment with the ideal formatting and scheduling for our classes. More information about our academic programs is available in this report.

The 2016-2017 year was also a time for significant investment in research and planning. We analyzed the Seminary's need for space, built relationships, and interviewed leaders at other seminaries in Greater Boston and beyond to discuss strategies to begin our work. In addition, we reviewed research conducted by the Whitestone Foundation and select doctoral students regarding the need for a seminary like ours. We also surveyed the community's needs and level of awareness about the Seminary's current offerings.

We have made two changes to the Seminary's plans as a result of this research. First, we are prioritizing the development of the academic programs and putting aside the construction of the new wing of the ISBCC as part of this project. Instead, we will search for appropriate facilities to house the Seminary as needed. Second, we will delay the start of the Graduate Program until 2019 to ensure that we have adequately developed the curriculum and gained the support required for the program to succeed.

This year we were also excited to welcome Dr. Tariq Ramadan onto our Board of Directors. With Dr. Ramadan's involvement we hope to make quick strides forward in the coming months, insha'Allah.

Alhamdulillah, we made significant progress during this first year of operations, and are excited about the road ahead. With the help of Allah (SWT) and your contribution, we look forward to achieving our dream of creating a world-class Islamic academic institution in America.

Thank You,

Salma Kazmi
Executive Director

About Us

Introducing the Seminary

The Boston Islamic Seminary is an academic institution for religious education. We train men and women in the traditional Islamic sciences, our contemporary intellectual, social, and cultural context, and in the skills required for leadership in American Muslim communities.

We aim to embody and inculcate a holistic Islamic ethos that values the purposeful acquisition of knowledge as well as humility, integrity, and sacrifice in the service of God and humanity. Further, we hope to transform our students through spiritual discipline and the highest caliber of scholarly engagement with the Islamic intellectual tradition and with the thought, culture, and legal frameworks that define Western civilization.

In the fall of 2016, we launched the inaugural semester of our Continuing Education Program, which will serve adult learners of all backgrounds, offering courses that encourage students to engage with the Qur'an and the Prophetic Sunnah, engage with the Islamic scholarly tradition, engage with our contemporary context, and engage with one another.

Our VALUES

Mission

To provide intellectually and spiritually grounded Islamic education for a modern world

Our Continuing Education Program offers adult learners innovative and intellectually rigorous courses that inspire deep engagement with Islam and enable critical analysis of our contemporary context (2016)

Our Graduate Program prepares exemplary and professional Muslim American leaders for compassionate service to society (2019)

Continuity

The Boston Islamic Seminary is committed to the authentic, balanced spiritual and intellectual heritage of Islam, deeply rooted in the compassionate teachings and wisdom of the Qur'an and the Prophet Muhammad (p.b.u.h.). We pledge to uphold the Islamic duties of submission to God and service to humanity, anchored in the teaching that only through righteous action towards others is one's faith complete.

Relevance

The Seminary is committed to the search for principled Islamic solutions to the particular challenges facing Muslims in their families, communities, and broader cultural environment. We further seek to build upon and develop the many areas of overlap between American and Islamic values and principles.

Responsiveness

The Seminary seeks to train competent Muslim leaders who have the knowledge and skills to help communities navigate new issues and unforeseen circumstances with wisdom, integrity, and compassion. We are committed to facilitating peaceful dialogue and dignified human interaction, as well as promoting the Islamic imperative of being good stewards of the earth.

Our PROGRAMS

Continuing Education Update

The year 2016 witnessed the start of the Boston Islamic Seminary's first academic program. By the grace of Allah (SWT), we held three classes in the fall of 2016 and four in the spring of 2017, each taught by top-notch professors. We explored topics that we believe complemented the good work of our existing institutions through courses such as: Contemporary Quranic Education; Women in the Qur'an; Islam in America; and Islam, Race, and Power—working towards our vision of educating students on issues relevant to our contemporary context. In our first year, our enrollment increased from 40 students in the fall to over 80 students in the spring. Further, we were able to offer financial aid to every student who applied for it and we look forward to continuing to ensure that the Seminary is accessible to students of all backgrounds. Some of our classes were attended by people of other faiths who greatly appreciated the ability to learn more about Islam. This year, as we sought to find approaches that best served our students, we experimented with classes of different lengths and formats, including piloting a "mini" class at the Islamic Center of Boston in Wayland. In the upcoming Fall 2017 semester, we hope to introduce other formats, including a shorter workshop style.

In the upcoming 2017-2018 academic year, we intend to develop partnerships with local colleges and mosques to increase the accessibility of our classes to a broader spectrum of students. We are also looking forward to launching online classes in the spring of 2018, insha'Allah.

We are immensely grateful for our instructors and our students who have made the inaugural year of the Boston Islamic Seminary a success!

Graduate Program Update

In the summer of 2016, we welcomed Dr. Basyouny Nehela to the Seminary as our Dean of Academic Affairs. Alhamdulillah, many of us know Dr. Nehela from his nearly fifteen years of service to the Muslim community throughout Greater Boston. Dr. Nehela holds both a Master's degree and a Ph.D. from Al-Azhar University and has most recently been teaching at Qatar University.

Under Dr. Nehela's guidance, and the contributions of other team members such as Dr. Sharif El-Tobgui of Brandeis University, the Seminary has developed an intensive curriculum for our future Graduate Program, including a balance of study in sacred texts, contemporary context, and practical skill building. The program offers three specialization tracks in: (a) Islamic Leadership and Spirituality; (b) Counseling and Arbitration; and (c) Outreach and Da'wa.

Our future plans also include the development of a second Master's degree which will explore the intersection of Islam and contemporary thought. The details of this program are still under discussion.

To prepare for a full launch of the Graduate Program in 2019, we are continuing an in-depth review of the curriculum with notable scholars and academics, drawing from a wide range of experiences. We will also continue to research and prepare ourselves for the accreditation process.

In our first year, our enrollment increased from 40 students in the fall to over 80 students in the spring. Further, we were able to offer financial aid to every student who applied and we look forward to ensuring that the Seminary is accessible to students of all backgrounds. Some of our classes were attended by people of other faiths who greatly appreciated the ability to learn more about Islam. Our student body includes people of all backgrounds, from college undergraduates to seasoned professionals, Imams and people with little religious knowledge and people of other faiths.

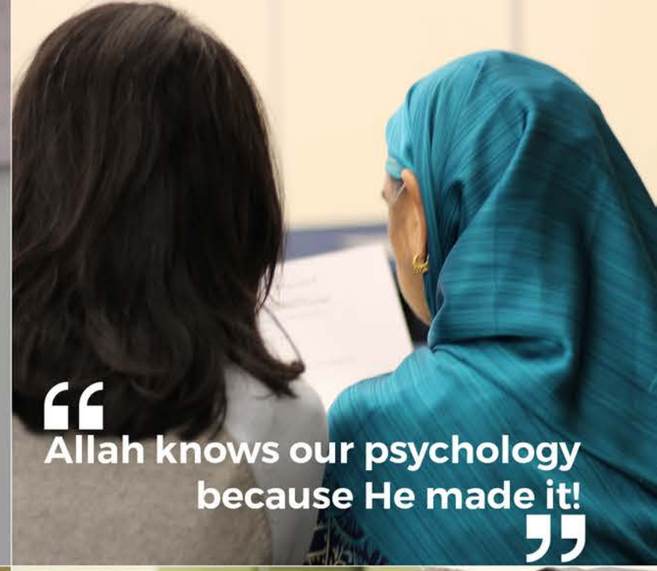

Student Advisory Board

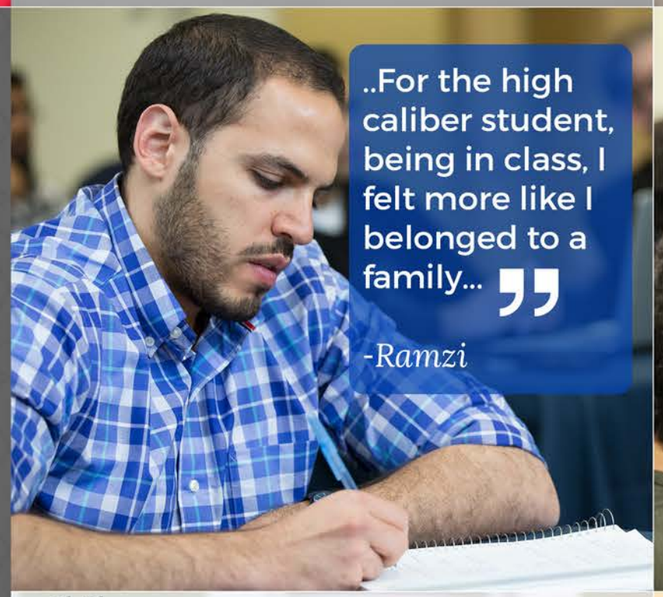

In the spring of 2017, we launched a Student Advisory Board for the Seminary, seeking to engage students in shaping the future of the Seminary and ensuring that the institution will serve the student population of Greater Boston. The Student Advisory Board, which is headed by Efe Akengin from MIT and Omar Khoshafa from Harvard, plans to help the Seminary in the areas of outreach, academics, strategy, partnerships, community building, programming, and fundraising. To get involved with the Student Advisory Board, please e-mail: studentadvisors@bostonislamicseminary.org.

Accreditation

In the fall of 2016, the Seminary continued its research into the accreditation process by attending a planning workshop offered by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC). The workshop provided important insights into the accreditation process for institutions of higher education and the opportunity to ask critical questions regarding what will be required of us in the coming years.

Dr. TARIQ RAMADAN

On March 31, 2017, we were pleased to host Dr. Tariq Ramadan for a lecture at the ISBCC. The event brought together over 1,000 people and was livestreamed both on the Boston Islamic Seminary's and Dr. Ramadan's Facebook pages, ultimately reaching over 50,000 views online. During his presentation, Dr. Ramadan talked about the importance of institutions like the Boston Islamic Seminary and about his interest in collaborating with the Seminary on future programs.

Prior to the event in Boston, Dr. Ramadan had spoken to Dr. Basyouny Nehela in depth about the Seminary project and vision. As a result of these earlier meetings, his experience visiting the Seminary, and additional conversations, Dr. Ramadan has agreed to join our Board of Directors. Alhamdulillah, we believe this will strengthen the Seminary's leadership and will, insha'Allah, help us continue to attract top-notch scholars to achieve our vision of establishing a world-renowned institution of Islamic education in Boston.

Our EVENTS

Opening Celebration
September 18, 2016

We commemorated our first year of classes at the Seminary with an Opening Celebration on September 18, 2016. Alhamdulillah, nearly 300 guests helped us mark the occasion with lectures by Dr. Basyouny Nehela and Ust. Ubaydullah Evans, in addition to a demonstration by world-renowned master calligrapher, Hajji Noor Deen.

May Symposium
May 21, 2016

The Boston Islamic Seminary hosted its Inaugural Symposium introducing the community to the project and to our Continuing Education instructors. The theme of the symposium was "Islam in America: Rooting Our Narratives and Nourishing Our Futures" and featured a keynote address by Imam Dr. Mohammed Abu Taleb. The symposium also gave participants a chance to preview the courses offered in the inaugural fall semester.

Student Socials
Fall & Spring Semesters

Each semester, the students of the Boston Islamic Seminary gather for ice cream, pizza, and a chance to meet each other. These events are an opportunity to build a sense of community in a relaxed environment and to socialize outside the classroom setting.

Our TECHNOLOGY

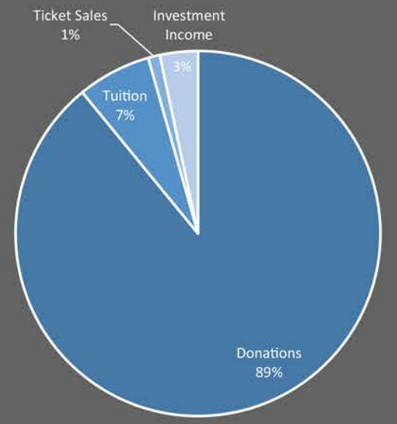

facebook YouTube Instagram moodle

This year, the Seminary has invested considerable effort into establishing an online presence by developing our website and investing in key social media platforms, including Facebook, YouTube, and Instagram. In addition to the education we provide through in-person programming, our social media channels allow us to provide free content to subscribers and connect to a wider audience. Our Spiritual Sundays videos are such an example. Each video features one of our instructors speaking on a topic of interest, ranging from women in the Qur'an, to preparing for Ramadan, to tazkiyat al-nafs (purification of the soul).

We also launched a learning management system (LMS) to facilitate communications between instructors and students in class. Every class is videotaped and made available to students who may have missed a class session, and the LMS allows for collaboration outside of class hours.

In this startup year, we made significant investments to launch our programs. This included hiring new staff, and developing our strategy, brand and marketing materials that were used for both student recruitment as well as fundraising. We have also worked hard this year to help familiarize the Muslim community with a project that is unlike any we have undertaken before, and to help donors understand the value of shifting our focus to think about our community's long-term needs. Alhamdulillah we have approached some overseas foundations with the capacity to make major contributions to this project, and these relationships are being developed slowly. Alhamdulillah as a result of savings from prior years, we had funds on hand to cover operations for 2016.
